

DEMOCRATS AGREE NOT TO CONFIRM OF JAMES' CABINET

First Time in State's History That Senate Refused To Confirm Appointees

JAMES STILL CONFIDENT

Governor Believes Adams and Hamilton Will Eventually Be Named

By Raymond Wilcox
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Jan. 25.—(INS)—Gov. Arthur H. James today found himself face to face with a Democratic revolt on his hands as Democratic Senators refused to confirm two of his cabinet appointees—Maj. Lynn G. Adams for Motor Police commissioner and Sheriff William J. Hamilton of Philadelphia for Secretary of Revenue. It was said to be the first time in Commonwealth history that a Senate has refused to confirm cabinet appointees of an incoming governor. The Democratic stand was agreed to at a caucus and no formal vote has as yet been taken in the Senate. Governor James expressed himself as confident, however, that they would eventually be confirmed.

Meanwhile, although halted at least temporarily on his two cabinet appointments, the new chief executive went ahead with his plans to solve the relief situation and effect economies in administration.

He signed a bill appropriating $12,000,000 for immediate relief needs and approved another bill transferring $26,000,000 from the motor vehicle fund. Three other bills transferring an additional $8,000,000 from three other State funds failed of passage in the Senate but were expected to be approved next week when the Republicans muster their full strength. The Governor hopes the $34,000,000 transferred will take care of relief needs.

Superintendent Halderman also announced that Doylestown High has been placed on the certification list by Cornell University, which eliminates preliminary examinations when matriculating at Cornell from this school.

Man Who Leaped From Train Is Taken To New York City

Pennsylvania Railroad officials arrived at Harriman Hospital this morning to accompany Walter Dahlquist, 40, of Chicago, Ill., to New York, in order to gain more information on Dahlquist's strange action of jumping through the window of a train, as it sped past Cornwells Heights at 60 miles per hour, Monday afternoon.

Dahlquist has been in Harriman Hospital, where he was treated for a fracture of the right shoulder blade, and sprained ankle. In New York he will be taken to the Swedish Consul, who will attempt to aid him in his plans for a journey to Sweden. Dahlquist had on his person a passport for a trip to Sweden, where he states he plans to visit his mother.

After leaping through the washroom window and striking a snowbank along the tracks at Cornwells Heights, the man ran across a field and into the home of Mrs. Elwood Knight, who, panic-stricken at the man's action and his screams about someone murdering him, hailed a passing motorist and summoned Pennsylvania Motor Police. Later Dahlquist's hat was found along the railroad and his bag was found on the baggage rack in the train when it reached New York. The bag was sent here yesterday.

It is believed that the snow-bank struck by the man in his dive from the train, saved him from severe injury. He was "bounced" along the track for about 200 feet after his leap.

FRANCE BIDS FOR AIR LEAD WITH MASS PRODUCTION

Newly-Developed "Fighting Fleas" Geared to Flying Speed of 300 M. P. H.

"FLIVVER" PURSUITS

By Merrill Mueller
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1939)

PARIS, Jan. 25.—(INS)—France has developed a 300-mile-per-hour "flivver" pursuit plane to be produced under mass-production methods in an effort to offset the air superiority of Fascist Italy and Germany.

These flivver fighters, or "fighting fleas" as they have been christened by pilots, will augment the 100 American Curtiss P-36 pursuit planes, which are much larger and faster.

And, since the Air Ministry plans to put the "fighting fleas" into production in a number of factories, it became more apparent today that American military aircraft firms will receive more orders from France.

These orders will be based on the selected list of military planes, chosen by the Air Ministry as ideal American equipment, and financed by the new budget for air of nearly $400,000,000.

Believing that a highly maneuverable ship, capable of slightly over 300 miles per hour, stands a chance in aerial combat against heavier pursuit planes of faster speed, Air Minister Guy La Chambre has certified the mass-production of the new "fighting fleas," first produced by the Caudron Aviation works.

Although it was not announced, this correspondent was informed by Minister La Chambre that one of the factors playing a most important part in this decision was the revelation that all-metal pursuit planes, which are consequently heavier, larger and more expensive to build, suffer seriously from vibration when struck by bullets in spots not usually vital.

Consequently, the "fighting fleas" will be of wood and canvas construction, reinforced in sections taking the heaviest stress by duralumin (aluminum and steel).

Since these ships will oppose airplanes having a 50-mile-an-hour speed advantage, they have been made very small to be highly maneuverable and are armed with two 20 millimeter aerial cannons besides two 50 calibre machine guns. The cannons are mounted in the wings and the machine guns in the nose.

Completely equipped, the entire plane weighs only 2,700 pounds. It's secret of speed and excellent maneuverability lies in its short, clipped wings, short fuselage and excellent power derived from a three-bladed, controllable-pitch propeller throw by a comparatively small in-line motor—480 horsepower.

The original model was quoted by the government as a 285-mile-an-hour ship but it had a stationary landing gear. The redesigned ship has streamlined modifications including a retractable landing gear, re-balancing of weight and the three-bladed propeller instead of a wooden "club."

These ships are designed to be secondary fighters, not combat ships designed to chase fast bombers or fast pursuers. With a fairly good cruising range, they will be able to strengthen squadrons of heavy pursuit planes and to escort bombers or protect home cities.

In the latter category, they will serve excellently, since they rise at a rate corresponding to that of some of the best fighting ships in the world.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

A Question of Pressure

Washington, Jan. 24.

WHETHER the slice of $150,000,000 which the House made in the relief appropriation asked by Mr. Roosevelt for the next few months is restored by the Senate is a question of pressure.

IT is worth while to note the various kinds of pressure and what is behind them.

First, there is the President, now thoroughly committed to continued spending and avowedly against any effort to economize. He wants no changes in the WPA, admits no flaws and resents the notion that the thing can be done cheaper and better as a reflection on him, which, of course, it is. His method of applying pressure is, first, to incite newspaper men at his press conferences to picture Congress as caring more for dollars than human beings; and, second, by White House letters to a long mailing list implying the same thing.

TOUR INSTITUTIONS OF THE SALVATION ARMY

Bucks County Group Sees How the Vast Work is Carried On

ALL MUCH INTERESTED

With Wallace G. Murfit, of Newtown, acting as escort, a group of Bucks County residents made a tour Saturday of institutions in Philadelphia supported by The Salvation Army.

Mr. Murfit, chairman of the Bucks County division of the 1939 Salvation Army Greater Philadelphia Maintenance Fund Campaign for $200,000, arranged the tour so that the Bucks County residents, all volunteer workers in the campaign, could obtain first hand information as to the welfare and humanitarian activities conducted by The Salvation Army.

Starting from the Oak Lane Review Club, the group went by bus to the Salvation Army's Social Service Center, Krams and Pechin street, in Roxborough, where they became acquainted with this huge plant in which 250 handicapped and aged men earn a livelihood reclaiming old furniture and other cast off articles.

From here, the group went to the Ivy House for Children, at 5441 Lansdowne avenue, where the Salvation Army acts as both father and mother to nearly 60 children between the ages of two and 16, who have been placed in its care from homes broken by poverty or domestic tragedies.

A visit also was paid to the Home and Hospital, 5415 Lansdowne avenue, where The Salvation Army offers a Manager William H. Gwinner, of the Bucks County Producers' Co-operative Association, this morning announced that the winning of the county banner for this year at the Pennsylvania Farm Show is due entirely to the co-operation of the poultrymen who assisted in exhibiting 335 dozens of eggs.

This year's winning of the banner is the first time since 1935 when the Bucks County Producers' Co-operative Association captured it that year.

Much of the credit for the splendid exhibition goes to Head Candler John L. Dugan and his corps of candlers who made the egg selections.

In the interim from 1935 until this year, Lancaster county, which exhibited 224 dozens of eggs at the State Show last week, received the county banner.

This year's Bucks county exhibition of eggs was the largest ever staged by the Bucks poultrymen.

Speaker Says Women Are Better Drivers Than Men

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 25.—Addressing the Doylestown Junior Women's Club here yesterday, Frank E. Ballantyne, general manager of the Philadelphia Branch of the A. A. A., declared that women are better automobile drivers than men. Most of the automobile accidents caused by men, he said, are due to being pre-occupied.

Out of every 1000 motorists, Mr. Ballantyne said, 60 percent are involved in an accident. Less than 10 percent are careless drivers and the other 90 percent are the happy drivers, he declared.

Sixty percent of the automobile accidents are caused by speeding. Mr. Ballantyne declared. He also said that the average passenger car is made to go twice as fast as it should ordinarily go.

"Unless you can command all of your faculties, stop driving," he declared.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1939

THE MESS IN WASHINGTON

The paramount question before the Congress now assembling stands out plainly. It is comprehended in the now-familiar brevity, "Debt, deficits—and taxes."

The Government is spending this fiscal year approximately $10 for every $5.50 it collects in revenues, borrowing the other $4.50. You have the situation by adding the ciphers that express billions.

Federal deficit financing, now in its eighth successive year, cannot safely be indefinitely continued. Everybody's interest is affected; for everybody's welfare will be served by national financial policy and management that will avoid diluting the dollar's value, and that maintains business confidence by maintaining the Government on a sound financial basis.

Confusion, as dissensions arise over large subsidiary questions, is inevitable. Through all, nevertheless, Congress is called on to display sober realization of the basic major problem, coming with it realistically in the final action determining the prospects of Federal income to meet the Federal expenditures reasonably soon.

Relief, pensions, veterans' benefits, social security, farm subsidies, housing aid, stronger defensive armament, maintaining half a dozen principal items in the whole sum of the spending, saving not only new Federal services—slashes of millions but billions, will be accomplished only if members of both parties reverse former action in voting to sustain the supporting appropriations.

DEFICIT AND ALIBI

Postmaster General James A. Farley has turned in one of his characteristic annual reports. The report shows that the postoffice department spent $43,811,556 more than its income in the 1938 fiscal year; but he said it would have made $1,112,821 profit had it not been for the expense of its free service. Mr. Farley estimated that it cost $48,224,377 to carry mail free for congressmen, government departments and blind persons, to subsidize air mail and perform "non-postal" functions.

Postal deficits are almost as old as the Republic itself. The government never has operated the post office as a profit-making enterprise. When Mr. Farley went into office and succeeded in getting the wartime emergency three-cent postage rate re-established in peacetime, he talked about making the postal service pay its own way. After Senator Black's three-ring circus airmail investigation—and President Roosevelt's unjustifiable sacrifice of the lives of army fliers after his theatrical cancellation of air mail contracts—there was talk about making the air mail pay its own way. But air mail subsidies still constitute an important part of the deficit.

And there is apparently no hope that a two-cent letter can ever again be mailed for two cents.

It is now 25 years since Joe Tinker signed to manage Chicago in the old Federal League, which bloomed for a time and went the way of all third parties.

One who knew him well says that in early manhood the late Gaston B. Means fell on his head—the kindest suggestion so far for the epitaph.

A third theory is that the Pilgrims may have paused at Provincetown, but went on their way as the barns were full of actors.

fighting for a larger share of relief money. Their self-interest is plain. The more they get from the Federal Government the less they have to provide themselves. They want the larger appropriation because it lightens their local problem. It's the easy way out.

THIRD, there are the two labor factions—the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. The influence of these organizations is always on the free-spending side; against any effort toward holding down relief expenditures. Nor are they entirely unselfish. It is obviously to their advantage to have a big appropriation and a high standard of relief pay—for their purposes, the higher the better. It makes easier their business of elevating the wage scale in private industry and it lightens the expenses of the unions by passing to the taxpayer the burden of supporting union members when on strike.

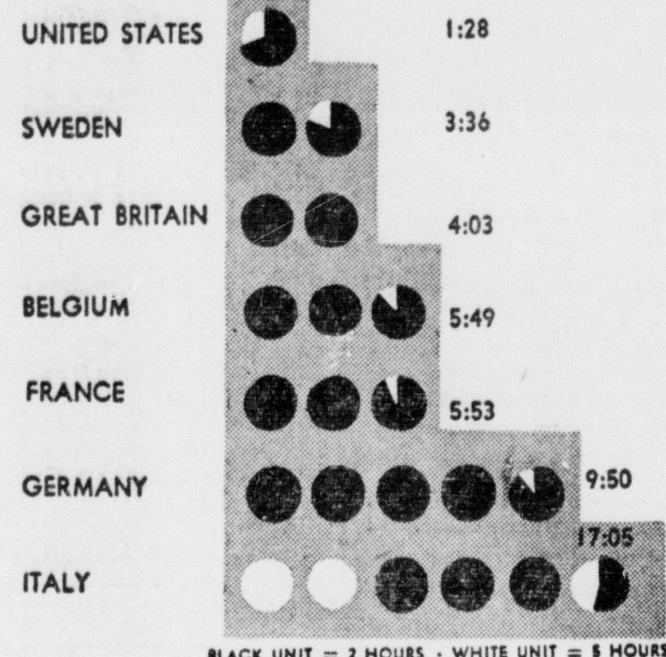

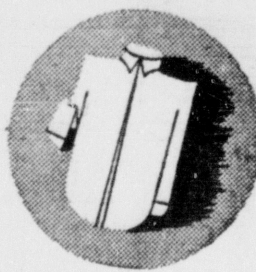

AND, finally, there is the Communist-soaked Workers Alliance, led by Mr. David Lasser and Mr. Herbert Benjamin, with their well-financed headquarters in Washington and their smoothly functioning propaganda machine. Largely composed of men on relief, its sole purpose is to get them more Federal money. No more extraordinary thing has occurred recently than the open Administration endorsement of, and co-operation with, this organization. In effect, it amounts to the Government telling its own employees to join a movement whose dominating idea is to compel the Government to shell out more money. In other words, the Administration has joined a movement to put pressure on itself. It is actively engaged in building up this organization to the point where it can make trouble when its demands are refused.

OF ALL these pressure groups the Workers Alliance is the most articulate and aggressive. Its leaders have adopted a threatening attitude before Congressional committees. They are now organizing a series of parades to be held simultaneously next Saturday, their publicity bureau asserts, in "hundreds of cities and towns." The purpose of the parades, it is declared, is "to demand that Congress pass a deficiency WPA appropriation of at least $875,000,000." The three principal slogans, the press agent states, will be: "To get a job if you want one," "To keep a job if you have one" and "To promote recovery by providing purchasing power." The Alliance, through its press agent, also denounces the Senate Appropriations Committee and proclaims its support to a $5,000,000,000 housing program and a $60 a month-for-those-over-60 pension

THE AMERICAN WAY

A SHIRT

Hours and minutes of work to buy a shirt.

WAGES will buy more in the United States than in other countries. This is strikingly brought out in an exhaustive study conducted by the National Association of Manufacturers showing "real wages" here and in Europe and revealing the amount of work required to buy everyday items in different countries. The study shows conclusively that, almost without exception, work will buy most in the democratic countries and least in the totalitarian states.

In the case of every item studied, more can be purchased with an hour's average wages in the United States than in any other country. Typical of the findings is the above chart showing that while a factory worker in this country can buy a shirt with the work of an hour and 28 minutes, a worker in Sweden must work more than twice as long for a similar shirt. British worker three times as long, a Belgian four times as long, a Frenchman four times as long, a German seven times as long, and an Italian thirteen times as long.

plan. —O— pressure from all four of these sources. —O—

IN brief, there is no limit to the money which the Alliance demands. Its idea is to keep the Federal spigots turned on full all the time. Of course, there is even more bluff about this organization than there is about the so-called Labor's Nonpartisan League. Neither is serious unless it can get itself taken seriously. The point about the Alliance, however, is that the Administration has taken it seriously and is playing politics with it. Appreciation of these facts might help members of Congress to correctly assay the applied

IT IS well, also, to consider that, despite this blubbery about human beings and the intimation that any public man who has a sense of proportion about public money wants people to starve, all four of the sources from which pressure comes—including the White House—have certain interests, not wholly unselfish nor entirely remote from politics bound up with the larger appropriation. Also, it might be well to realize that there is a strong political link between at least three of them.

HE: "Where'd you get all the swell red towels?"

SHE: "...At the WHITE SALES ...naturally!"

This is another of those things that husbands never understand . . . why the January White Sales are a riot of color in towels and tinted sheets and table linen and dish towels.

But women understand that our White Sales today are not just a sweep-up of all the soiled odds and ends of a year's merchandising. Store buyers plan months ahead for the freshest, most colorful, most spring-like assortments . . . all priced so temptingly that even January pocketbooks open-up and let you shop.

Of course, the bargain tables are present too . . . and this is the thrifty time to stock your shelves with staple sheets and spreads.

But this year, as never before, there are "specials" on smart, fashion-wise bath linens, bed linens, table linens. You can find them, first . . . right here and now in this newspaper. Why not look up the White Sales advertisements, read the good news, and see the good buys tomorrow?

FASHION PARADE

By Jane Cehran

(I. N. S. Fashion Editor)

NEW YORK — (INS) — The blouse question has become an important one in the winter fashion scene and you'll have an exciting collection if you obey the dictates of fashion.

Designed for a sweeping black velvet dinner skirt or a spinning velvet skirt, the blouse is the shirred, quilted, draped, embroidered or tailored blouse now being featured. They are absolute magic for changing a basic skirt into a variety of costumes and are chic for both afternoon and evening.

Lastest Jame in fuschia, chartreuse, royal, white or black with silver threads is fashioned into a close fitting dinner blouse and adds a gleaming note of color when worn over a black skirt.

Lame is also tailored to form a blouse for wear with a dinner suit. Pearl stud buttons fasten the demure little-girl front and add a note of chic simplicity to the costume.

If you are a sequin fan, you'll like them on your blouses, or woven closely on a brief fitted bolero jacket that zips up the front for smooth fitting . . . a glittering note for any dinner party.

Sequin embroidery trims bolero jackets in crepe, satin and velvet which milady can use to transform a formal dress into a two-timing outfit.

New this season, but following the current trend towards old fashioned styles, are the quilted silk and wool jackets and blouses. Nipped in at the waist, with short sleeves and upped shoulders they give their wearer a quaint daguerreotype appearance.

Quilting occupies a place of prominence in the winter mode and is used not only in blouses but in evening gowns, house coats, velveteen suit jackets and handbags.

Evening sweaters are still riding the crest of the fashion wave and appear in pink, copper, pale blue, chamois, grape and other delicate colors. They're not only attractive but comfortably warm on chilly winter evenings.

You'll be smart if you wear stripes in your suit blouses . . . grey, black, crimson and yellow stripes slashing across your somber suits . . . and you'll want a wallpaper striped blouse to top a black skating skirt.

Daytime blouses, once considered only in connection with suits, now have a personality of their own. They're so attractive you'll wear them with a separate skirt as a mix-your-own costume.

A new idea in blouses for suits this season is matching them to the jacket lining. A wine suit may have a fuschia lining and a printed blouse in the same color, while many other combinations are appearing in suits you'll like to wear under your fur coat.

Unquestionably right under your fur trimmed suit or topping your dinner skirt is the draped blouse, snug fitting at the waist to emphasize your slim torso, and with short sleeves and shrug shoulders. Rows of buttons march either down the front or the back of the blouse and the materials are silk, satin or lame in glowing colors.

This winter's blouses will not only transform your old standbys but they're fashion high lights in their own right.

ON THE SCREENS

With the unerring showmanship vision that has been responsible for several of the most entertaining and successful picture series, 20th Century-Fox has again directed its production talent and resources to the creation of a new series of action pictures, dramatizing the exploits of "The Camera Daredevils," the first of which, "Sharpshooters," comes to the Grand Theatre today.

The heroes of this new series are two devil-may-care newsreel photographers chasing danger 'round the world! And they're ready on a moment's notice to take their lives in their hands—or maybe a girl in their arms.

In the featured roles are Brian Donlevy, Lynn Bari and Wally Vernon. In "Sharpshooters," Donlevy is given full opportunity in the type of reckless, romantic action role for which he is noted. Lynn Bari is seen as Brian's niftiest assignment, while Wally Vernon is cast as Waldo, the movie sound man. His hilarious comedy talents are given full play and provide an ideal foil for the reckless daring of the dynamic Donlevy.

BRISTOL

Stirring adventure on India's Northwest frontier is being served this week to patrons of the Bristol Theatre, where Alexander Korda's thrilling technicolor production "Drums" is holding forth with Sabu, the small Indian sensation of "Elephant Boy" fame, Raymond Massey, Roger Livesey, Desmond Tester and Valerie Hobson in featured roles.

One of the most exciting films in the memory of this reviewer, "Drums" is also one of the most magnificent, with its thrilling scenes actually photographed in India's treacherous Khyber Pass.

Sabu is even more charming than in "Elephant Boy" as the little Indian prince of A. E. W. Mason's story, whose bravery and loyalty save a whole regiment from slaughter at the hands of a power-mad Indian potentate.

Captain Carruthers, a fearless British officer (Roger Livesey), is sent to India to quell the uprisings being fomented by the fanatical Prince Ghul (Raymond Massey), who dreams of snatching the throne of his brother, the Khan of Tokot, uniting the various hill tribes and eventually driving the British out of his ever-broadening domain.

BRISTOL WINS EASILY OVER SOUTHAMPTON; FINAL SCORE 45 TO 22

Local Team Exhibits Old Form and Has Easy Time of It

TIE WITH MORRISVILLE

Cardinal and Gray Now On Equal Terms in League Leadership

The Cardinal and Gray quintet exhibited the old comeback form here last night as the local passers swept the invading Southampton Greyhounds off their feet by burying them under an avalanche of double deckers to chalk up a 45-22 win over coach Claude Lodge's proteges.

The victory was the fourth in five starts this season and the third in a row in league competition which enables the Cards to move into a first place tie with the Morrisville Bulldogs for the league leadership of the Lower Bucks Circuit.

Last night's contest was not only interesting from Bristol's standpoint, but also from a humorous angle. With referee Mike Derrick of Yardley High playing the leading comic role, the fans who witnessed the fray received many laughs, Derrick, as usual, kept the fans in merriment with his peculiar antics and motions as he yelled out the violation penalties throughout the game.

The Cards looked better in this tilt than they have in the past several games, even more so than in the Bordentown fracas. A look at the box score will reveal that everyone of the first six regulars hit the nets for six counters or more as the scoring was evenly divided among all with Van Lenten topping the point-manufacturers for Bristol with 11 tallies. Bristol centered their attack in no one particular period, having clicked in all four cantos with a balance of scoring in each. There was a high and low since they didn't count the same total in each session. The high was the last period in which they chalked up 13 counters and the low was the second in which they scored nine markers.

Bristol's passing was up to the standard again and their shooting was marked by accuracy as a look at the score will reveal, the Cards having peppered the nets from the floor on twenty rapid-fire occasions. They accounted for the other five from the foul mark. While they counted 20 field goals, they also missed quite a few close shots, which, as the score indicates, had no effect upon the ultimate outcome, except for the fact that they would have counted a much higher total than they did.

Southampton, too, was very ragged on their shots, but particularly so on passing and dribbling, two methods by which they lost possession of the ball very frequently, as Bristol players intercepted passes, took the ball from them or they threw the ball into the stands. The Greyhounds were never in the ball game and showed signs of life in only the second period when they rallied to score 11 points to trail at half-time, 21-12. But their usual second half fold-up came in the third period in which Elmer Losse's two foul goals were all they could score. In the meantime, Bristol was still racking up twin pointers in quick succession to pile up a huge lead which enabled them to coast in to an easy win.

HIGH SCHOOL SEXTET MOVES INTO 1ST PLACE

As a result of scoring a 32-22 win over the Southampton Canines on the local court here last night, coach Peg Royer's Bristol High sextet moved into undisputed possession of first place, the spot they shared with Morrisville previous to last night's fray. The win was the third in a row for the Cardinals who have yet to taste defeat.

PAT CORRIGAN AND SAMMY COHEN TO MEET

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 25.—One of the "hottest" return matches in the history of wrestling at the Trenton Arena is scheduled for tonight when Promoter Johnny Ipp trots out Pat Corrigan, the likable Irish youngster, and Slammin' Sammy Cohen, the heavy-fisted Bronx Hebrew. They will clash in the feature bout, best two falls out of three to win with a 90-minute time limit.

Cohen and Corrigan are both well known to local fandom and when they were paired last week in a supporting bout there was much interest in the encounter. It was the briefest bout in local wrestling annals, Cohen pegging Corrigan with a short right punch to the jaw and then raining punch after punch on the hapless youngster until he crashed him to the canvas and pounced on Pat for the pin. The time was 12 seconds and the fans were in an uproar. There were threats of dressing room reprisals and the fans surged toward the basement but cooler heads prevailed.

Pat spent the rest of the evening pleading with Ipp to get him a return match and Ipp succeeded. Many fans stopped at the box office and added the weight of their appeals for the rematch. A strong supporting card will precede this grudge bout. Bibber McCoy, the only man to score a fall over Hans Steinke, will vie with Pete Peterson, the classy Dane who holds a decision over Chief Little Wolf here, in the semi-windup. Little Wolf, always a great favorite, will seek to regain his winning streak by tackling Angelo Leone, fiery Italian, who downed Whiskers Wells last week. Bull Martin, Trenton's own roughneck, faces a doughy newcomer, Dick Lever and Rube Wright, fresh from a triumphant European tour, meets Sid Westrich of Hungary.

The first bout will start at 8.30 p. m.

Scout Executive Board Plans Scouters' Banquet

The revised constitution and by-laws were approved with the exception of one clause. If it receives the approval of the scout council at the annual council meeting on March 27th it will be adopted.

It was voted to hold the scouters' banquet on March 2nd at the Salem Reformed Church, Doylestown, as the armory could not be secured that night or for the following two weeks. It is customary to hold such affairs in a non-sectarian place if possible. Frank Braden, National Assistant Director of Senior Scouting will be the speaker.

The plans of the camping committee for improvements at Camp Buccoo were approved. President Strath appointed Thomas Ross, E. H. Lovett and Herbert Pettit, Sr., as a nominating committee for new officers to be voted on at the council meeting. The resignation of John Woodbridge of Morrisville was read and accepted with a resolution of appreciation for his past service. Mr. Woodbridge stated in his letter that the pressure of business made his attendance at meetings impossible.

E. H. Lovett, chairman of finance, reported that $13,518.11 had been received in cash and pledges to date on the recent finance campaign. The Board went on record as approving the securing of the services of a professional campaign manager again for the campaign next fall. Mr. Thomas Jaynes, president of the Superior Zinc Company of Bristol was elected to membership of the board to represent the Langhorne area. The date of the next meeting was set as March 20th.

UPPER MORELAND QUINTET NOSES OUT BENSALEM, 15-13

UPPER MORELAND, Jan. 25.—A field goal in the final period by Ray Denver, Upper Moreland guard, provided the Grovers with their two point margin of victory scored over the Bensalem Owls in the wind-up tilt of the evening here last night, 15-13.

BENSALEM MATMEN

This evening at seven o'clock, the Bensalem matmen will make their 1939 home debut when they tangle with the Cheltenham Jayvees on the Owls floor. So far, the boys have taken two of their three meets and hope to add the invaders from Montgomery County as their third victim of the season by taking them into camp tonight. Following the wrestling meet, the Bensalem men's faculty quintet will clash with the Doylestown High faculty at 8.30 to wind up the evening's entertainment.

Estimating the total deficit for this biennium at from $45,000,000 to $50,000,000 Governor James moved to balance the budget—with the exception of the relief deficit—by slashing personnel, abolishing jobs and state agencies, and by non-use of State funds already appropriated by the preceding Administration.

Discounting the relief deficit, Governor James said he expected the administrative deficit to run between $11,000,000 and $16,000,000. It was this amount, he added, that he hoped to economize on.

To effect this economy, he announced the following steps were being taken: first, approximately 900 jobs will be abolished and their personnel dropped from the payroll, effecting a saving in salary for this biennium of $1,750,000. Largest cut will come in the Highways Department, where from 333 to 387 jobs will be abolished. Other jobs to be abolished include 50 to 75 in agriculture, 68 in forests and waters, 81 to 107 in health, 37 to 55 in insurance, 10 in justice, 190 in labor and industry, 22 in property and supplies, and 16 in military affairs, and many other jobs in these and other departments now undergoing reorganization. In addition, the bureau of civil rights and public information is to be abolished. In the Department of Public Instruction economies totaling $140,000 are planned.

On the question of confirmation of cabinet-designates Hamilton and Adams, Governor James finds himself unable to secure Senate approval except with the aid of nine Democratic Senators whose votes are needed to make up the two-thirds necessary to confirm.

All but a few of the 24 Democratic senators voted in caucus to turn thumbs down on Hamilton and Adams, the first because they questioned his retention of fees collected while sheriff and Adams because of opposition by CIO unions who contended he acted prejudicial to labor while head of the old State Police. A public hearing on Adams is to be held next Monday or Tuesday.

Should Democratic opposition to the two appointees remain unchanged, Governor James would have one of several courses open:

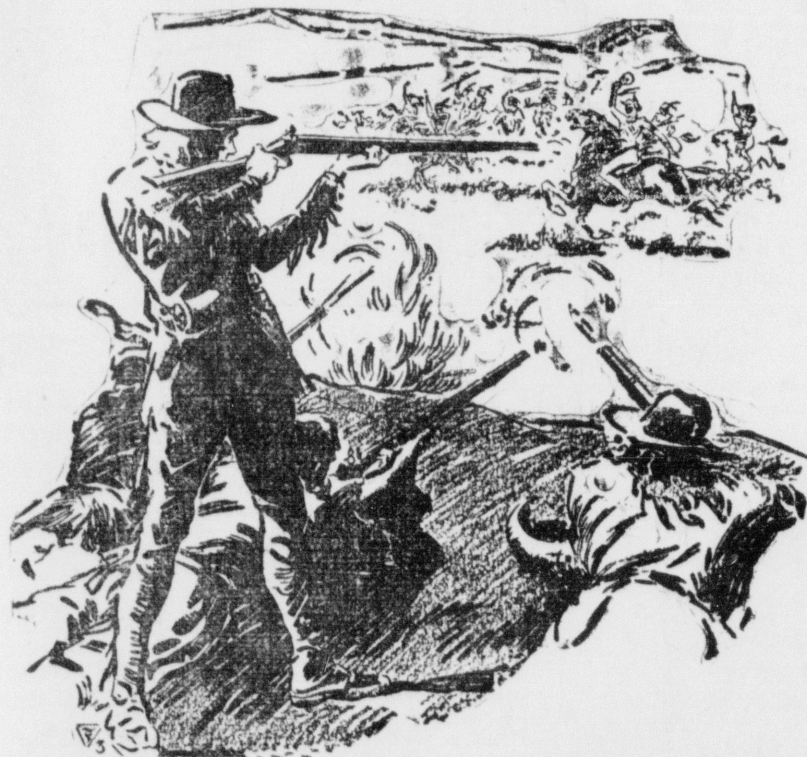

He could appoint them deputies and then have them serve as the heads of their departments in the absence of any other appointments or he could adopt the position that they were entitled to serve as long as the Senate did not reject them. Once the Senate adjourned, he could reappoint them as heads of their departments and they could serve until the end of the next Senate session without Senate confirmation.

Democratic objections in the Senate to the transfer of the full $34,000,000 from State funds, was based, they said, on a desire to have whatever funds were needed for relief appropriated expressly for that purpose and not transferred without being previously earmarked. Due to the absence of two of their Senators, the Republicans were unable to muster the necessary constitutional majority of 26 votes. This will probably be rectified next week with the votes of the two absentees and the additional $8,000,000 will then be transferred and available for relief needs.
